Creativity Characteristics

To support infants and toddlers as best as possible, we must understand the ways in which they grow and develop. Think about an infant or toddler you care for and his or her creativity. Take time to read and answer each question based on the infant or toddler you are thinking about, as well as your role as his or her caregiver.

What captures my attention as infants and toddlers explore?

What behaviors do I notice in this infant or toddler that tell me about his or her creativity?
What do I think is valuable about this behavior?

What do I think he or she is drawn to and feeling excited about? What might he or she be trying to accomplish and learn?
