Supervision During Challenging Times

Look over the scenarios below and think about how you would safely secure supervision of the children in your care. How might your strategies change depending on the age, needs and developmental level of the children? In each of these scenarios, your supervision is compromised either by the lack of sight or the necessity to multi-task. After brainstorming, look at some of the suggestions we provide and see if they align with your own ideas. Talk with your family child care administrator or other providers about your ideas.

What happens when you need a few minutes of personal time to use the bathroom?

What about during meal preparation for snacks or lunch?

What about speaking with and attending to families during pick-up and drop-off times?
